

Introduction to Metastatic Trial Search

Welcome to Metastatic Trial Search, also known as MTS.

We are here to help people whose breast cancer has spread beyond the breast, known as metastatic or stage IV breast cancer, discover and consider clinical trials as an option for care. MTS makes it easier to find trials that match your personal situation.

Designed by patients and advocates, MTS is a program of BreastCancerTrials.org, an organization that has been helping people match to trials since 2008, powered by Quantum Leap Healthcare Collaborative. Consistent with our non-profit mission, we will never sell or share your personal information for any reason. We list all available breast cancer trials and we do not accept sponsored content, meaning we do not highlight or promote any one trial over others.

Our goal is simply to help you learn about and understand all trial options available in the US.

Here's how MTS works:

- 1 To start, you can use MTS as a guest by entering information about your diagnosis through a series of short questions, OR you can register to use the more detailed MTS profile which will provide the most accurate results. It may be helpful to have your medical records available to help you fill out the MTS profile. You can also ask your doctor for this information
- 2 View a personalized list of trials written in patient-friendly language.
- 3 Login or Register at any time to save your profile, save trials as favorites, and enter your treatment history for the most accurate matching.

★ Remember: there will be video guidance and tips throughout the site to help you find a trial that's right for you.
